

Local Access Communications changes name to Rainier Connect

For Immediate Release
September 20, 2006

Local telephone and internet service provider, Local Access Communications has changed its name to that of its parent company, Rainier Connect. As Rainier Connect, the company will continue to provide telephone and internet services to businesses in Centralia and Chehalis, Washington.

The decision to change names came in an effort to further improve the efficiency of our service to customers and minimize the confusion and costs associated with maintaining two separate names in the same state.

Current Local Access customers will be able to keep their same email addresses and will still be working with the same staff they've come to know in our Centralia office.

For further questions about any changes at Local Access/Rainier Connect, please contact any of our offices at 1.800.832.5725.

Rainier Connect is a family-owned telecommunications company, providing both residential and commercial services to South Pierce County for over 95 years. Local Access Communications became part of Rainier Connect in 2000, and together they are now offer high-speed broadband Internet services and high-quality telephone service to much of the area.
